(Scene begins with Raj and Ram sitting in a park, engrossed in a conversation.)

Raj: Ram, do you know why Republic Day is so important for us Indians?

Ram: Well, it's a holiday, and there's a parade, right? But I'm not sure why it's such a big deal.

Raj: It's much more than that, Ram! Republic Day is the day when our Constitution came into effect in 1950. It's the day we became a republic!

Ram: (confused) Republic? Constitution? What's the big deal?

(Raj spots Professor Verma passing by and calls him over.)

Raj: Professor Verma! Can you help me explain to Ram why Republic Day is so important?

Professor Verma: Of course, Raj! Republic Day marks the adoption of our Constitution, which is like the rulebook for our country. It defines our rights, duties, and the principles that guide our nation.

Ram: (intrigued) Okay, but why is having a Constitution such a big deal?

Professor Verma: Imagine playing a game without rules. Chaos, right? The Constitution is like the rulebook for our country. It ensures that everyone is treated fairly, protects our rights, and sets the foundation for a just and democratic society.

(Raj suddenly notices Constitution Man appears)

Constitution Man: (with a big smile) Citizens of India! I am the Constitution Man, here to protect and uphold the principles of our beloved Constitution!

Ram: (surprised) Whoa! Is that... Constitution Man?

Constitution Man: Indeed, Ram! Our Constitution is the backbone of our Republic. It guarantees equality, justice, and freedom to all citizens. Without it, our democracy wouldn't function properly.

Raj: (excited) So, Constitution Man, tell us more about the significance of Republic Day!

Constitution Man: Republic Day is a celebration of our commitment to democracy and the rule of law. It's a day to honor the vision of our forefathers who crafted the Constitution. The parade and festivities showcase the diversity and strength of our nation.

Ram: (grinning) I get it now! Republic Day is like our country's birthday, and the Constitution is the gift that keeps on giving.

Professor Verma: (nodding) Exactly, Ram! It's a day to reflect on the values that make us proud citizens of the Republic of India.

(They all join in the celebration, waving flags and cheering for the parade as Constitution Man strikes Godly Pose.)
